SATURDAY EVENING POST stories are never contracted for; never taken on name. They are selected on merit and are the best work of known and unknown authors. This year we shall present at least twenty new writers. Our "big names" are almost invariably first made in THE SATURDAY EVENING POST. Every story must be a part of that greater story that runs in the magazine from week to week and from year to year, portraying the character, the struggles, the failures and the achievements of the American people. The Editors realize that a great circulation is not only a great opportunity, but a great responsibility.

Tell It to Psmith

The P being silent as in Pshrimp

A Novel by P. G. Wodehouse

Psmith listens to everybody's troubles, takes them on his shoulders and succeeds in making the world a happier and more joyous place for eight weeks.

Winnie and the Copperhead

by Bertram Atkey

One of a series portraying the adventures of blue-eyed, but exceedingly capable, Winnie with the baby stare.
